

FALL 2022 CATALOGUE

CELEBRATING 6 Years & TWO NEW ARTISTS

This season we are honoured to bring two new artists into the StandOut gallery of high quality 750 piece Canadian art puzzles.

British Columbia artist Peter Wyse joined us this summer with his inaugural design, 'Crossing the Sound' – a celebration of good times on BC's coastal waters. Peter's eclectic art interests range from Matisse and Rothko to the murals of Mesoamerica. These influences are evident within his spatial relationships and lively use of colour and line.

We await Peter's winter puzzle, 'The Woo Hoo Gang' – a whimsical tribute to good times on Canada's renowned ski hills scheduled for release in September. Welcome Peter!

Our search for standout talent this year took us to Ottawa and the colourful art of Terry Ananny.

Terry Ananny's vibrant and colourful acrylic canvases of hockey, children at play and seasonal village scenes capture the spirit of Canadian life. Her early years spent in summers on Lake Muskoka and travelling to Quebec enriched her life with lasting impressions of the splendid Canadian landscape and diverse Canadian culture.

Terry's inaugural winter design, 'Curling on the Ottawa River' will be released in September and is sure to be a favorite with curling enthusiasts around the globe. We welcome Terry to our gallery of talented Canadian artists and look forward to working with her on upcoming productions in 2023.

Peter and Terry are in good company with StandOut contributors Alex Fong, Angela Morgan, Anita Skinner, Brandy Masch, Dana Irving, Denyse Klette and Laura Hamilton.

We hope you will find this season's collection colourful, challenging and irresistible and we thank you for your support these past six years.

Happy Puzzling,

PETER WYSE

Peter Wyse was born in 1970 (The Year of the Dog) in Kamloops, British Columbia. He works from his home studio in the historic village of Clayburn, 75 km east of Vancouver. Peter shares this charming space with his wife, son and a mischievous mutt.

"I live within a landscape of dogs and frogs, flora and fauna, and even a rubber duck or two. My life is both peaceful and playful and this is what I paint."

TERRY ANANNY

Terry Marie Ananny (née Broughton) is a Canadian fine artist born in Toronto, Ontario. She showed an early interest in art and moved to Ottawa in 1975 to attend Carleton University where she attended art classes and group showings with the Ottawa Art Association and discovered the works of the Group of Seven's Marc A Fortin, Clarence Gagnon and Emily Carr at the National Gallery of Canada. Their work was the inspiration behind her vibrant style which continues to evolve. Terry's subjects often feature domestic scenes, townscape, landscapes and figurative work.

ALEX FONG

Alex's watercolor world stirs the imagination with a kaleidoscope of light and color, and a bouquet of wonder and whimsy. It is a paradise where bountiful orchards, vineyards and gardens teem with birds and animals. It is a fanciful place where one might see a painted cow ambling through a crosswalk or an elephant drifting across a summer sky.

ANGELA MORGAN

Angela Morgan (née Harlton) lives and works in Fernie, B.C. Angela's work celebrates humanity through the use of colour, pattern and line. Her human figures express the poses of life; the jubilation of dance, the contemplation of parenthood, and the melancholy of summer's end. Colours fuse and meld to achieve gesture; transforming abstract images into living moments. She is represented in galleries across Canada, Switzerland and Ireland.

ANITA SKINNER

"I love to use my own colours and imagination, as well as tell a story."

I am always thinking about art, and what my next painting will be. I see art in life around me. I love the freedom of creating what comes to mind, whether it is a blue tree or a green sky. I like to create folksy images that make people smile, and even perhaps create memories.

BRANDY MASCH

Brandy Masch was born in Kitimat, British Columbia. She received her BFA from Emily Carr Institute of Art and Design (2001) in Vancouver. Brandy paints primarily in acrylic gouache, ink and watercolor. A large part of her inspiration comes from our ecosystems, issues on biodiversity, urban development and its impact on the environment. Her pieces combine flora, fauna, and mechanics in a style that is intricate, charming and slightly sinister. Brandy's paintings are represented in galleries across Canada. She now resides and paints in her studio at the Rotary Centre for the Arts in Kelowna.

DANA IRVING

Dana Irving is a Canadian landscape painter. Drawn to the beauty of the Pacific Northwest, having spent her formative years in Jasper National Park, Dana finds inspiration in both the quiet grandeur of the rainforest and in the power of the magnificent Rocky Mountains. Influenced by the painters of the 1930's including Canada's own "Group of Seven", Dana's unique style has been described as "Emily Carr meets Dr. Seuss".

Living in Canada, where nature can be ignored by no one, Dana turns her artistic expression toward the spacious forests of ancient trees, the emerald green rivers and mountains and the moody weather around it all. Dana is a noticeable presence in the North American art scene.

DENYSE KLETTE

Denyse Klette's earliest memory of creating was when she was four and she spent hours copying the drawings out of her sister's 'How To Draw' book, which serendipitously was written by a Disney artist. When she was 8, Denyse announced to her parents that she should quit school and become an artist since that is what she knew she would be. Her parents made her stay in school but she was selling her line drawings by grade five so she could have "donut and butter tart" money and by 16 she had her first cartoon strip published in two local newspapers.

On Dec 5, 2019, Denyse signed the contract to become the first Canadian Disney Fine Artist. "It is still a surreal feeling that I get to wake up each morning and get to create Disney artwork".

LAURA HAMILTON

As long as I can remember, I have always been a dreamer... I have always seen things in my own unique way. I grew up in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan drawing, painting and creating for hours on end. I continued to have a desire for creativeness well into high school. In my early twenties, I graduated from the University of Regina with a Bachelor of Arts Education and went on to pursue a career in teaching. I taught elementary school for almost ten years.

My figurative paintings are my own interpretations of beautiful women. These women have continued to transform as I have evolved as an artist. In the beginning these women were brave and courageous, and I believed they helped me to heal. My signature female characters can now be described as playful and intriguing women with vintage dresses, striped stockings, fun floral patterns and everything in between.

CANADIAN ART AT YOUR fingertips

Do you know an artist whose work you feel would be a great fit for StandOut Puzzles?

We are always seeking exciting new work by Canadian artists. We offer a licensing/royalty opportunity and encourage all artists to consider licensing as both a revenue stream and a marketing/promotional tool.

Submissions are welcome through our website at info@standoutpuzzles.com. Artists need to provide a link to their portfolio, website or social media platform.

We will take a look and if we like what we see, we will request samples. Due to the high volume of requests we receive, we will not reply unless we feel the work may be a fit for the line.
